

My New Exciting Research Project

Andrea Pasqualini

Abstract

This research project answers new and interesting questions using novel, super-robust and one-click reproducible methodologies. It argues that the marginal cost of creating a software infrastructure, as software developers would have, is dwarfed by the marginal benefit, which consists of continuously-reproducible results with traceable and documented changes.

1 Introduction

Once upon a time...

2 Conclusion

The end.